Paralympic Games

Paralympic Games is an international sports event held for athletes with disabilities.

Let's read out some information about them.

- The first Paralympic Games was held in Rome, Italy, in 1960. It featured 400 athletes from 23 countries.

Sweden was the host of the first winter Paralympic Games in 1976.

Just like the Olympic Games, both Paralympic Games are also held at an interval of four years.

Rather than grouping athletes by age, weight and gender, para-sport athletes are grouped for each sporting event by taking into account the level of impairment.

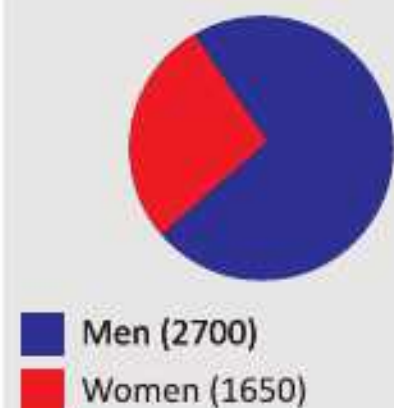

Two new sports - canoeing and the triathlon, were included in the 2016 summer Paralympics for the first time.

Algeria's Abdellatif Baka won the men's 1500m race; he did it in less time than the winner of Rio Olympics 2016.

4,350 athletes from 160 countries competed in the Rio Paralympics 2016.
